Managing Accreditation

- Initial self-assessment the agency's accreditation manager is expected to:
 - Orient all agency personnel and train selected employees regarding the standards and the accreditation process.
 - Evaluate the agency's current written directive system using CALEA standards.
 - Maintain regular contact with assigned Regional Program Manager.
 - Identify and comply with applicable standards.
 - Establish agency systems to ensure accreditation maintenance. These systems include inspections, audits, reports, and analyses.
 - Prepare proofs or use other methods to verify compliance with standards.
 - Maintain the agency's electronic accreditation files.

Important Aspects

- Whether initial accreditation or re-accreditation, important aspects of an AM's job are:
 - Identify and comply with applicable standards.
 - Evaluate the agency's current written directive system using CALEA or SC LEA standards.
 - Establish agency systems to ensure accreditation maintenance. These systems include inspections, audits, reports, and analyses.
- Having a work plan and understanding your agency's workflow is CRITICAL!

Work Plans

- Work plans can be as simple as a spreadsheet and as complex as project management software.
 - Keeping up with what has been completed and what remains is important.
 - Tracking who has been assigned a task and establishing an expected timeline for return helps keep processes moving.
 - Timelines can help keep track of time-sensitive standards and serve as a calendar for accomplishing those tasks.

Accreditation Contacts

- Building an accreditation contact network is important to SUCCESS!
 - Stay in touch with your Regional Program Manager and SCLEA Mentor!
 - Use the SCPAC list serve!
 - You don't have to re-invent the wheel, ask for help from other agencies. They are always happy to help!
 - Network with other accredited agencies. They can provide guidance on implementing new analyses, processes, audits or reports.
- There is never a situation you can experience that has not been experienced by another agency somewhere!

Accreditation Managers

- Accreditation managers are critical to helping an agency be successful!
- Staying current with public-safety trends can help an AM provide information to the command structure to help navigate your agency forward.
- The Command Staff is the head of the agency, but a good AM can serve as the neck and direct the CS on situations that may require special attention or serve as a resource on best practices!
